COST WAS HEAVY

State's First Attempt To Convict Dr. Amoss Cost $2,000.

Circuit Clerk Radford has given out a statement of the costs in the first of the three cases against Dr. D. A. Amoss at the recent term of court. The total cost was about $2,000, including $580 for Stenographer Crossland and $734 60 witness fees. This does not include the expenses incurred by the defense not charged to the State, nor does it take into account the fees of attorneys. As there are eleven more cases to be tried, two against Amoss, the total costs are liable to amount to almost as much as the property the night riders destroyed in Hopkinsville.

The costs of the entire term of circuit court were $4,694, including the Amoss case.

High School Game.

The high school team of Hopkinsville defeated the Madisonville high school team Saturday by the score of 15 to 0.

MRS. WILLIAMS

In Shakespearian Roles Will Be Rare Literary Treat.

Mrs. Hannibal A. Williams, of New York, will present "Romeo and Juliet" at B. F. College Monday night, for the benefit of the college. She comes with the highest praise of literary critics.

PROFESSOR ADRIAN M. NEWENS, Professor of Oratory and Public Speaking, Iowa State College, Ames, Iowa, says:

"I trust that you will accept a word of appreciation of your interpretation of 'Romeo and Juliet.' In suggested character work, seldom, if ever, have I seen anything more superb; in keen interpretation of lines through inflection of voice, fine discrimination of the characteristics of the characters it could not have been more beautifully presented. In all it was an artist interpreting most artfully a great literary art production. Few evenings, if any, have I ever spent more delightfully than with you in Toledo last June."

Admission 50 cents.

One way to stop earaches is to sell the piano.

- 7:30 p. m. Preaching and Song Service.

Great satisfaction is felt by the hearers are noted saying of his present sermons that they are even superior to those which he gave at his first visit here.

The atmosphere of the church is full of anticipation of the pleasure, and profit to be got from today's and to-morrow's meetings. Mr. Yeuell will preach as usual this afternoon and the ordinance of baptism will be administered to such as are prepared to receive it.

To-night the Evangelist will not preach but will give the first of his Saturday night lectures which were so popular two years ago. The lecture is called "The Tragedy of the Ages" and will be illustrated with 100 of the finest stereopticon views obtainable. These views will be shown with dissolving effects by a skillful operator using an excellent people of the Ninth St. Christian church in the happy results already reaped in the remarkable meeting now being conducted for them by Evangelist Yeuell. Many have come forward to confess Christ as Lord and to unite with the local church otherwise. There is also a manifest quickening of the zeal of those already in the church. Prayer is being made continually that this quickening of spiritual energies may go forward even more rapidly and powerfully. There is therefore gratitude for what is done and large expectancy of accomplishing what further ought to be done in the revival of the church as well as in conversion of those without.

Mr. Yeuell preached with marvelous skill and vigor when he was in Hopkinsville before, yet intelligent machine. No price of admission will be charged but such as feel able and willing are asked to bring a silver offering of whatever amount they may like to give to the support of the meetings. However it is earnestly desired by the church that no one will fail to attend because he may not feel able to make an offering. Such will be welcome anyway. The offering will be received at the door.

To morrow will be full of good things. A special Sunday school service at which Mr. Yeuell will speak, a preaching service following, an afternoon lecture to women only on "The Women of Yesterday and To-day," and a preaching service at night go to the making up of the program. Music of the most hopeful and inspiring character will be rendered at all services of the day.

All are cordially invited to these meetings.

A NOBLE RECORD

Of many hundreds of thousands of cures forms a well sustained basis for every claim put forth by the makers of DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY as a remedy for many of the troublesome afflictions which afflict mankind; yet it is not extolled as a "cure-all" by any means. No extravagant promises are flaunted before the public to arouse false hopes in the afflicted. Your neighbors probably know of some of its many cures; ask them.

Through strengthening and arousing the stomach, liver and bowels into vigorous action, digestion is promoted, whereby the blood is enriched and purified, disease-producing bacteria destroyed and expelled from the body, and thus a long list of skin, scrofulous and kindred affections are overcome and sound, vigorous health established.

The "Discovery" contains no alcohol and no habit-forming drugs, and has its every ingredient printed on its wrappers. This OPEN PUBLICITY places it in a class distinct from the ordinary secret nostrums with which it has no relationship. Physicians, therefore, do not hesitate to prescribe it in bad cases of indigestion, torpid liver or biliousness and in skin and blood affections. People of intelligence and keen discernment employ it. The "Discovery" is a pure glyceric extract of native medicinal roots of great curative potency, and can in no case do harm to either child or adult. The aged find it a great invigorator.

You can learn more about this time proven and popular "Discovery" from the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, a newly revised, up-to-date edition of which is now offered, in cloth covers, post-paid, for 31 cents in one-cent stamps, to cover cost of mailing only; or in paper covers 21 cents. March Hares

By Carl Jenkins

It was a breezy, blowy day in March, with now and then a few snowflakes falling, and in spite of its being a mile to the village, Miss Lottie Parnell had set out to walk.

As she was making ready for the jaunt Aunt Linda, the colored cook, who had been in the Parnell kitchen for 15 years, and enjoyed special privileges, brought her mittens to her and whispered:

"Miss Lottie, I dreamed 'bout you last night, and you put this rabbit's foot inside one of your mittens."

"But why, you silly old goose!" laughed the girl.

"Because it's the month of March, and if you walk down to Cherryville and back something is sure going to happen to you unless you have the foot along."

"But he can't—not when I'm around! And you didn't kill it—you only tortured it and then set your dog on to finish it."

"And if any danger comes you hang right on to the foot hard as you dog can."

"Will you please let me see how badly it is hurt? Its blood is dripping on your cloak. May I take it from you?"

"Yes, you may, and you come back to the house with me and help me doctor it!"

The rabbit was tenderly transferred and they started back. With a gun on his shoulder, an abashed dog following at his heels, with a broken-legged rabbit in his arms and a queer sort of girl walking beside him—queer but nice—how was Gerald Swift to introduce himself? He simply didn't, and as for Miss Lottie she didn't seem to think of anything but the rabbit. He was a poor thing. He was an innocent thing. He was a helpless thing. He trusted in man, and then man shot him and broke his leg and set a dog on him!

In due time the Good Samaritan, the embarrassed young man, the shame-faced dog and the innocent rabbit, arrived in the kitchen of the Parnell house.

Aunt Linda held up her hands at the sight and exclaimed to herself:

"Lawd! Lawd! but it has come! Took that rabbit's foot along in her mitten and found a beau in half an hour! And 'tain't no old man on crutches, either, but a mighty peart young fellow, and he's doin' more blusin' than she am!"

Yes, one of the rabbit's hind legs had been broken by the shot. There was an earnest medical consultation at once, and then five or six leaden pellets were picked out of the flesh. Miss Lottie held the patient while Mr. Swift did the picking.

There were salves and liniments and Aunt Linda; splints were prepared and bound on, and at last poor Bunny rested on a cotton batting bed in a box and seemed in a fair way to live to a good old age.

It was then that Mr. Swift took his departure, and he had been gone ten minutes when Miss Lottie suddenly exclaimed:

"Bless me, but I don't know who he is, or he who I am!"

"Don't you worry a bit 'bout that, honey," replied Aunt Linda. "That rabbit am here. He's a sick rabbit. He'll be all of four weeks gettin' well, and that young man am comin' here most every day to inquire 'bout his health. Next time he comes he'll tell you his name and get yours, and after that—"

"After that—what?" asked Miss Lottie.

"Why, you stupid child! Didn't I give you a rabbit's foot when you went out? What's a rabbit's foot for? Don't it catch a husband? Hasn't it the same as caught that young man for you? Hu! never known such a stupid young lady!"

"Old black goose!" called the girl as she fled to the sitting-room.

But the young man called—and the rabbit got well—and the shame-faced dog was forgiven—and Miss Lottie became engaged.

"Why, I was hunting rabbits, you know, and I got sight of this one and fired, and—and—"

"And broke his leg—and set your dog on him—and then came whooping like a savage! Why don't you shoot down children? What had this poor rabbit ever done to you? Poor little frightened, wounded thing! How brave of you and your dog!"

"But men do shoot rabbits," he said as he stood bareheaded in the cold wind and shuffled his feet uneasily.

"Not real men—only savages!" was the reply. "Real men shoot wild beasts or they don't shoot at all. Sir, you are a bad and cruel-hearted man, and you ought to be ashamed of yourself!"

"Let me say, Miss—Miss—that I am very, very sorry," he said as he came a step nearer. "I had never looked at rabbit hunting in this light before. I thought a fellow could kill a rabbit any time or anywhere."

"But he can't—not when I'm around! And you didn't kill it—you only tortured it and then set your dog on to finish it."

"And if any danger comes you hang right on to the foot hard as you dog can."

"Will you please let me see how badly it is hurt? Its blood is dripping on your cloak. May I take it from you?"

"Yes, you may, and you come back to the house with me and help me doctor it!"

Tobacco Market.

The loose floors of J. P. Thompson & Co. and R. E. Cooper & Co. have sold this week about 200,000 pounds. The market has shown much activity and prices have been as high as any time during the season. Some of the tobacco is showing bad order and therefore is selling for less money.

Those who are best posted say at least 95 per cent. of the crop to be marketed has been delivered.

The demand for prized tobacco is springing up from all directions and from now until the close of the season high prices are expected to rule.

Threatened Detective.

A demonstration was made by a party of young men against John Sensing, a Nashville detective who has been working in the Henry Thompson murder case at Providence, Ky. Sensing was at Providence to appear before the grand jury.

The heart of the fan and especially the young fan rejoices because the contract of Clarence Yon, he of the port side twirling proclivities, has been received and securely tucked away for this season and his strong arm andunning curves will be relied on to win many games.

Mother Nairn has also signed a lightning fast third baseman from the Danville club of the Central League. His name is Zimmerman and he is a brother of Zimmerman who plays 3rd for Chicago Cubs.

Nairn is now in Terre Haute to look over some fast men in that team and if he can find some more strong men, will sign them, as none but the very best will do us.

Paducah has signed two more players, Knapp, an outfielder, and Lison, a pitcher from Springfield, Ohio.

Cardul, I am sure, saved my life." Cardul is today used in thousands of homes, where it relieves pain and brings back strength and ambition. It is a woman's medicine, for women's ailments, and you are urged to try it for your troubles. Ask your druggist. He will tell you about Cardul.

CLEAN SHOW

Is "The Man On The Box" Friday Night.

The sterling worth of an article is attested by its length of service.

When Manager Holland secured a date with "The Man On The Box" Co. he gave to his patrons a chance to see one of the most popular plays of the decade. A show that is good enough to stay 200 nights in one theatre in New York City and over 100 nights each in Boston and Chicago, has got to have something in it that appeals to the public taste—The one dominating note of "The Man On The Box" is its cleanliness. There isn't a line, word or action in the play to which the most exacting can take an exception, and the management guarantees to refund the price of admission if this is not established as a fact. HIDDEN TREASURE Concealed in Old Lounge He Was Taking to Dump.

Boston, Mass., April 14.—Coins and crumpled bills to the amount of $2,495 greeted the eyes of Peter J. Pitts, a teamster, when his horse backed a wagon over a discarded lounge which had been thrown out into a East Boston street. Pitts was loading the refuse, when a wheel of the wagon broke the lounge and disclosed the money. His shouts brought a crowd of men, to whom he gave a share of the treasure and a holiday was at once declared. No clue to the original owner of the money has been found.

U. S. SOLDIERS

Step Across Line to Stop a Fight.

During a battle which lasted all afternoon and resulted in the capture of Agua Prieta, Mexico, by the rebels commanded by "Red" Lopez, American troops crossed the border and stopped the fighting. The action was taken after three men had been killed and several wounded in Douglas and the continued firing was endangering the lives of Americans on United States territory. Douglas was under constant fire three hours.

Was Found Lost Pair Of Overshoes.

Clarksville, Tenn., April 10.—A marvelous discovery was made by Dr. Sechrist while disarticulating the body of the large reptile which died of pneumonia on the midway of the old soldiers' Carnival. A was chronicled in these columns, a large box constrictor owned by the Rock City amusement company, died after an illness of four days. The skin was removed at once and later Dr. Sechrist undertook the work of disarticulating the body for mounting. While engaged at this the intestines were opened and a pair of low gum shoes were found. The shoes were right and left and from the way worn evidently were mates.

"The two shoes lay together, one slightly across the other, and had passed only a short distance into the intestines. There was an enlargement at the point where they lodged, a lesion or coating entirely covering the way worn evidently were mates.

Don't say it's the same old story told in the same old way.

Don't say these clothes are not "different" until you have seen them.

Then you can say and think whatever pleases you, because we have a pretty good idea of the impression they will make.

In fact, that's the very reason we are telling you about "Griffon Clothes."

Clarksville, Tenn., April 14.—M. C. Morton was convicted Tuesday in the Montgomery county criminal court on the charge of bigamy and sentenced to ten years in penitentiary. The case had been before the court since last Friday morning and Tuesday morning.

It is alleged that about two years ago Morton married Mrs. Delia Bartee of Cumberland City, and on 27th of last October married Miss Ethel Martin of Port Royal. When confronted with the charge of bigamy he endeavored to shift the marriage to the Martin girl to another man named Morgan, for whom he claims he secured the license.

HE OBEYED HIS ORDERS

Panama Policeman Told to Arrest Any Person Jumping on or off Moving Train.

The native Panamanians in the canal zone do not in every instance take kindly to the strange army of 40,000 workmen who have invaded their land. Even when affable and obliging, they cannot grasp the purposes of the white men, and their efforts to serve are of little avail. Hugh C. Weir, in "The Conquest of the Isthmus," illustrates the point by an amusing story.

A short time ago the railroad officials were troubled by the number of unauthorized passengers on the freight trains. In spite of the most rigid efforts to solve the problem, the situation was not improved, and finally a number of native patrolmen were stationed along the track with strict orders to arrest any person jumping on or off a moving train.

Something less than a day later one of the guards stumbled into the Culebra station in a much ruffled condition, dragging after him a vainly protesting captive. Both had evidently been through a rough-and-tumble fight, and there were unmistakable signs that it had not been finished to the satisfaction of either.

A crowd gathered on the run as the guard explained to the station official, "Caught dis man hoppin' on dat train about a mile down de road, sah."

The prisoner endeavored frantically to make himself heard, but the patrolman threatened him into silence with his stick. "He was half-way to de roof when I grabbed him, sah."

Again the prisoner struggled, and again his captor produced the club. "But I yanked him to de ground, sah, just as you told me, and here he am, sah."

With a desperate effort the prisoner finally jerked himself free. He was the brakeman.

WILL IT LAST?

"Why did Mrs. Flimflam insist on taking Mr. Slimnoodle for her second husband?"

"Because of her superstitious fancy. She noticed that she nearly always won when she met him at a bridge party, and concluded he was a match."

CARE OF HOUSE PLANT

PROPER WATERING THE MOST IMPORTANT DUTY.

Water Should Be of Same Temperature as Room and Not Administered Haphazard—How to Spray the Foliage.

Watering is by far the most important duty in taking care of the indoor garden. Sickly plants, in six cases out of ten, are the result of being watered just whenever the owner happens to think of it. A good percentage of the remainder are caused by an excess of water. Too much is as bad as too little. When overwatered the roots are unable to absorb all the moisture. This causes the soil to become soaked, thus excluding the air. Then the earth becomes sour, the roots decay, and the leaves of the plant turn yellow and fall off. When under-watered, the roots dry up with similar results.

All potted plants should be watched. Rub a pinch of the soil between the fingers. If it crumbles up without caking, then you know it is time to administer water; if it cakes, then there is still enough moisture unabsorbed. The water should be of the same temperature as the room in which the plants are kept and should be clear.

People who pour the hot water left the bottom of the tea kettle on their flowers must not be surprised if the roots are scalded to death. The plant should be allowed to stand and drain for some time. Then the excess in the saucer or jardiniere must be emptied out. When the flowers are in window boxes, by the way, holes should be drilled in the bottoms of the boxes in order to allow the excess moisture to drain off.

Syringing is also important. All plants should be so treated except those whose leaves are covered with hairs. The value of syringing is that it helps to keep the foliage clean, the breathing pores of the plants open and the leaves and stems free from insects.

On warm days this syringing should be done outside, putting the plants where they can get the sun while taking their bath. It is better not to use a nozzle, but place the thumb over the opening of the hose and spray the water so that it may fall on the leaves like rain. In cold weather this should be done in the bathroom.

Plants with large and tough leaves, such as palms and rubber plants, need to be sponged from time to time. Do this lightly and don't rub the leaves.

Dressed Meat.

A cheap, nourishing, delicious, and easily digested meat for luncheon or tea is made by boiling a "shankbone" of veal, one of beef, and one of mutton together until the meat will fall from the bone. Carefully remove all bone and gristle, chop fine, or put through meat cutter. Season to taste, sage and savory may be added if desired. Place half the mixture in a bread tin, have ready five or six hard boiled eggs, cut each end from them so they can be placed close, end for end, in a row on the meat in the center of tin. Then add the balance of the meat, press closely, and set away until firm. Slice in half inch slices with a sharp knife so that each piece will have a slice of egg in the center, garnish with parsley. This never fails to be an attractive dish and once made well is in constant demand. The stock can be used for soups.

Currant Bread.

One quart of bread flour, two hands or a half a cup of sugar (more sugar if you would like it sweater), tablespoon of lard, one-half yeast cake dissolved in lukewarm water and one and a half cups of well washed currants. Mix flour, sugar and salt well together, then make a hole in middle of flour and add the water as you would mix white bread, then add yeast, mix good, then the currants, then fold in the rest of the flour and mold as you do your bread. Mix it exactly like the white bread for stiffness. Some people like to add the currants when they are molding it for the baking, but it isn't as good as putting them in when you first mix it. Let rise all night.

Cheese Potatoes.

Bake eight medium-sized potatoes until they are cooked through, peel and mash them in a saucepan. Add a piece of butter the size of an egg and half a cupful of bread crumbs which have been previously soaked in milk. Make a paste of the potatoes with two tablespoonsfuls of hot milk, the yolks of two eggs, and the whites beaten to a stiff froth. Season with salt, pepper and a dash of nutmeg. Mix well together and pile high in a buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with grated cheese and bake in a hot oven until browned on top.

Cold Tapioca Pudding.

Put one cupful of tapioca into a saucepan, add two cupfuls of water and soak over night. In the morning add two pints of milk stirred gently, and boil about 20 minutes; then add the beaten yolks of four eggs, one cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter, and allow to boil for a few minutes longer; flavor with a teaspoonful of orange extract, and pour into a pudding dish. Beat up the whites of the eggs stiffly then gradually beat the pudding with this mixture. Serve cold.

WHERE HE WANTED TO BE

Broker Wins Pool and How He Won Causes Astonishment at Home.

Rev. Charles C. Earle of Boston counts the following as the best after-dinner story he ever heard: During the last financial panic a number of young Wall street brokers were going to lunch and were feeling pretty blue over the bad straits the panic had placed them in. One wished he was in Halifax and another in Africa. Finally the six agreed to make a pool of $5 each, the money to go to the man who best answered where he would like to be in the time of trouble. They sat down to lunch, and each told where he would like to be in my wife's arms." He was awarded the money, which he took home and gave to his wife, telling her how he had won, only that in telling the tale he changed, "my wife's arms" to "church." As he never went to church, she was very much surprised that he should make any such answer.

While out walking the next day she met several of the brokers, and they congratulated her on her husband winning the pool. "Yes," wifey replied, "but, you know, the funny part of it all is that he has only been where he said he wanted to be twice in his life, once before we were married and once after." The brokers all laughed heartily, and the lady, too, although she did not see the joke in the same light the brokers did.—Kansas City Star.

LIFE LINE WAS FOULED.

Carl Fogelberg, a diver attached to the Brooklyn navy yard, is recovering from the effects of being entombed more than an hour far below the waters of the big dry dock No. 3, where he was inspecting the placing of a caisson. The diver's life line was fouled, and the air line was kept free with the greatest difficulty. He was nearly unconscious when he finally was got above water by the efforts of a fellow diver.

Fogelberg, in the time that he was under the water of the dry dock, faced the worst peril that a diver knows, the fouling of his air line. This was avoided only because his mates aided him to get out just in time.

HAD THE RIGHT MAN.

John Hays Hammond was a guest last fall at a dinner at which most of the guests were big railroad officials. To the man on his right he poured out a tale of woe about the miserable service given by a New England railroad to its patrons. "I have a home at Gloucester, Mass., explained Hammond, "and I'm here to say that the officials of that road ought to be hanged, drawn and quartered for the poor accommodations given to passengers going into Boston." The man on his right let him go through with his maledictions against the railroad. Then he said to Hammond: "Here is my card. I'm vice-president of that road."

SEEK IMMORTALITY IN ART

Artists Would Live Forever by Expressing Themselves and Their Thoughts to Posterity.

Wise or foolish, men have agreed that death is disagreeable, annihilation undesirable, remembrance sweet. Religion, out of its hope that this fleeting world may not be all, has evolved a doctrine of unending life in another world. The Greek, the Brahmin, have given the soul another habitat and have called their doctrine metempsychosis. The artist seeks immortality in art, in self-expression—a form of creative impulse is irresistibly strong as that by which the world is peopled—the cacoethes scribendi, strong wherever life is strong, pouring out the countless memoirs of Erasmus, the hundred volumes of George Sand. Of all that formed the audiences of the ancient world those live today that expressed themselves, those that thought in marble, that conceived in bronze. With all men, since grateful Homer at Chios put his benefactor's name among the companions of Ulysses in the Odyssey, since Milton died happy that posterity would not willingly let his memory die—it is mortality's protest against dissolution, the recoil from oblivion.—Atlantic Monthly.

PROGRESSIVE MAORI.

The Maori of New Zealand is a fine fellow and well liked by Europeans. That he is progressive is shown by the up-to-date methods which he adopts in farming and when he indulges in the luxury of motor cars he always wants the best makes. Those Maoris who are living in the northern portion of New Zealand have had a large number of their villages connected by telephone; the lines, erected by themselves, have been put up in a solid and secure manner. During evening time when conversation is slack on the telephone, the gramophone is impressed.

HE WOULDN'T COME BACK.

The conductor of a train was having trouble with a German who would not pay the whole fare. In despair, he at length stopped the train and told the man to get off. This the German gladly did, and running ahead of the engine he began to walk the ties. The engineer whistled for him to get off the track. The German turned around and shook his fist at the train: "You needn't whistle!" he said. "I won't come back."

As soon as Willie Cohen gets his salary he rushes out and has it changed into $1 bills. "Some day somebody is going to make a mistake and it ain't going to be me!"—New York Telegraph.

AMONG THE "INSURRECTOS"

Mexican Revolutionists Fight Calmly as If They Were Merely Doing a Day's Work.

The insurrectos fought their battle as if they were doing a day's work and were afraid they would offend the "business agent" by finishing it too soon. There was no excitement, no hurry about their methods. Without any apparent tumult, a band of ten or fifteen men would come slipping, sliding and crawling down the side of the hill that protected us from most of the federal bullets into the bunch of visitors and brother insurrectos at the bottom, guns smoking and hot from use, and ten or a dozen fresh men would slip up the rocky side of the hill to take their places on the top, climbing silently, swiftly and with the agility of a cat. Nearing the top, they would drop suddenly on to their stomachs and then push their way slowly to the crest, where, from behind a boulder or a clump of desert weed, they could draw a bead upon the enemy in the valley below. Some were cowboys, some were small merchants, some were former federal officeholders who had won gubernatorial or presidential favor and been dismissed, some were vaqueros, some were freighters and some had formerly served in the federal army—one told me he had "escaped" from the federal army, but one was just as eager for the fray as the other.—G. A. Martin in Leslie's.

PAID FOR THEM HERSELF

Maggie Was Buying Violets and Man Who Used to Send Her Roses Dodged.

Two men about town were walking up Broadway near Long Acre square, when one of them called the attention of the other to a woman buying a bunch of violets from a flower vendor. She wasn't very well dressed.

"That's Maggie," he said. "She doesn't see us. Let's get by before she does."

"Did you ever know her?" asked the other.

"I certainly did," replied the first. "She used to be one of the prettiest chorus girls on Broadway."

"Seems to like flowers, doesn't she?"

"She just loves them. I used to send her American Beauties. They used to cost me as high as $25 a dozen."

"Violets—a 15-cent bunch, I guess," replied the one who used to know Maggie.

"And she's paying for them herself."—New York Telegraph.

TO GET THIN.

Fashionable women are now taking treatment with the electrical blanket instead of the steaming Turkish bath. This is a series of electrical wires between nonconducting rubber sheets.

The electricity which many nervous people cannot take without becoming numb is not felt, being used merely for heating purposes. When the body is wrapped in an electrified blanket for half an hour profuse perspiration is generated without there being any sensation of smothering or headache. The head is left free; only the body is blanketed.

The perspiring period is followed by a needle or shower bath made gradually colder, and later, by gentle massage and alcohol rub.

Remaining night rider suits are: Maggie Scruggs against Dr. E. Champion and others; Henry Bennett, Laura Toomey and G. W. Gordon against Dr. D. A. Amoss. Interest in the three latter suits has increased much since the acquittal of Dr. Amoss at Hopkinsville several weeks ago.

On the equity docket is the suit of the East Tennessee Telephone company against the city of Paducah to restrain the city from enforcing the new rate ordinance.
